Good morning all,

Apologies if I've missed any statement on this, but have we formally identified the contractor as Environmental Restoration?

Weird. Thanks for getting back to me. I guess I'm wondering what the EPA has said regarding Environmental Restoration, if anything?

JC, your e-mail actually ended up in my junk mail – no idea how that happened. I want you to know I wasn't ignoring your inquiry. Did you get the info you needed, meantime? Please advise if you have any follow-up.

Robert,

The Wall Street Journal is reporting that the contractor is Environmental Restoration LLC (<http://www.wsj.com/articles/epa-contractor-involved-in-colorado-spill-identified-as-environmental-restoration-1439414672>). Here is the quote from the story:

"Environmental Restoration LLC was working at the direction at EPA in consultation with the Colorado Division of Reclamation, Mining and Safety,' an EPA official said on Wednesday."

Can you confirm that?

Thanks.

Robert,

Juan Carlos from Law360 here. Could you please send releases regarding the Gold King mine spill to me, in addition to any other Law360 reporters that have requested them? Thanks.

Also, I am writing a story about the spill and I figured I would run a couple of questions by you.

I am wondering:

1. What is the name of the contracting company that the EPA had employed at the Gold King mine and caused the spill? I have read elsewhere that it was Lockheed Martin but want to confirm.

2. Has the EPA taken any action to compensate parties that may be harmed from the spill? Or does the EPA plan to?

I think that does it for now.

Thanks.
